Pete Nonis

Pete Nonis serves as AAA's manager of congressional relations, where he is responsible for advocating the association's transportation policy and funding priorities before Congress, the White House and federal agencies. Since joining AAA in 2007, Nonis has developed and executed AAA's Making America Stronger campaign, which educates policymakers and the public on the importance of advancing responsible, long-term solutions to meet the nation's transportation challenges. He has been featured in Reuters, Politico and Bloomberg BNA, as well as on CNN's The Situation Room with Wolf Blitzer.

Prior to his role at AAA, Nonis led federal government relations activities for the American Motorcyclist Association (AMA), the world's largest group of motorcycle enthusiasts. While at AMA, he spearheaded Congressional passage of a healthcare nondiscrimination bill and secured appropriations for transportation safety research and natural resource programs. Nonis previously worked for U.S. Senator Jack Reed (D-RI) and also for former Governor Haley Barbour's (R-MS) public affairs firm, BGR Group. He received a Bachelor of Arts degree in Political Science from The American University in Washington, D.C.
